Marital Status and Living Arrangements: March 1990

(The estimates in this report do not reflect the results of the 1990 census. See appendix B for estimation procedure.)

INTRODUCTION

This report presents detailed information on the marital status and living arrangements of the noninstitutional population of the United States, based on the results of the March 1990 Current Population Survey. The text of this report compares current survey data with data collected from earlier surveys. In some instances, data from decennial censuses are used when survey data are not available.

Data contained in this report reflect the impact of various factors on the behavior of men and women regarding marriage, divorce, and living arrangements, and the corresponding effect upon the living arrangements of children. Highlights include:

- The estimated median age at first marriage was 26.1 (± 0.1) years for men and 23.9 (± 0.1) years for women.
- Since 1970, the proportion of women 30 to 34 years old who had not yet married has nearly tripled from 6 (± 0.9) percent in 1970 to 16 (± 1.2) percent in 1990.
- In 1990, 73 (± 0.6) percent of children under 18 years lived with two parents, compared with 85 (± 0.4) percent in 1970.
- The proportion of young adults aged 18 to 24 who maintained their own families dropped from 42 (± 1.2) percent in 1960 to 22 (± 0.9) percent in 1990.
- One-third (± 1.7) of never-married persons 25 to 29 years old lived at home with their parents in 1990.
- Of the noninstitutional population 85 years and over in 1990, 23 (± 2.9) percent lived with their spouse and 47 (± 3.5) percent lived alone.
- There were 2.9 (± 109,000) million unmarried-couple households in 1990, an 80-percent increase during the past decade.

POSTPONEMENT OF MARRIAGE

In 1890, the estimated median age at first marriage was 26.1 years for men and 22.0 years for women. At that time, a decline in the median age at first marriage began that did not end until 1956 when the median reached a low of 20.1 years for women and 22.5 years for men. This 66-year decline was reversed between 1956 and 1990, as the median returned to the 1890 level of 26.1 years for men and an even higher 23.6 median for women (table A).

The proportion of young adults who have not yet married has been growing rapidly during the past two decades (table B and figure 1). Between 1970 and 1990, the proportion of 20- to 24-year-olds who had never married increased from 36 to 63 percent for women and from 55 to 79 percent for men. The proportion never married for 25- to 29-year-olds tripled for women (from 11 to 31 percent) and more than doubled for men (from 19 to 45 percent).

Although the proportion never married declines as age increases, significant increases have occurred for persons in their thirties. Between 1970 and 1990, the proportion never married for persons 30 to 34 years old nearly tripled, rising from 6 to 16 percent for women and from 9 to 27 percent for men. Among men and women 35 to 39 years old, the proportion never married rose from 5 to 10 percent for women and from 7 to 15 percent for men during the same time period.

DIVORCE

In 1990, there were 15,128,000 currently divorced persons who had not remarried, 8 percent of the total adult population. The number is higher for women than for men (8,845,000 vs. 6,283,000) because women are less likely to remarry after divorce. The increase in the divorced population can be measured by comparing currently divorced persons to currently married persons, excluding any married persons who are not living with their spouse (those separated due to marital discord or those living apart for other reasons such as institutionalization, business, or away in the Armed Forces).

The ratio of divorced persons to married persons living with their spouses was 142 per 1,000 in 1990, three times the ratio in 1970 (table C and figure 2). The divorce ratio for women was 166 per 1,000, compared with 118 per 1,000 for men in 1990. Women have higher divorce ratios than men largely because of their lower incidence of remarriage. The divorce ratio for Blacks was higher than that for Whites (282 vs. 133 per 1,000), and the ratio for persons of Hispanic origin, who may be of any race, was 129 per 1,000 in 1990 (not statistically different from the ratio for Whites).

These statistics reflect the marital status of persons at the time that the survey was conducted. Thus, the marital status category of "divorced" does not indicate the number of divorces that occurred in 1990, but instead the cumulative number of persons who had dissolved their marriage through divorce, and who had not remarried by the time of the survey, regardless of when they divorced. The divorce ratio is, therefore, affected by rates of marriage, divorce, and remarriage in prior years. The annual divorce rate published by the National Center for Health Statistics differs from the divorce ratio in that the divorce rate is the number of divorces that are granted in a given year per 1,000 population. Unlike the divorce ratio, this divorce "rate" has declined in recent years (4.8 per 1,000 population in 1987 as compared with 5.2 in 1980).[1] of unmarried men to unmarried women is much larger at younger ages, suggesting that the marriage prospects for younger women are better than for older women. At older ages, the ratio is considerably smaller because women are more likely to be widowed and are less likely to remarry after either divorce or widowhood.

At peak marrying ages, unmarried men outnumber unmarried women. Among persons under age 25, there were 111 unmarried men for every 100 unmarried women, and in the 25-to-29 age group, there were 127 men for every 100 women. Beginning with the 40-to-44 age group, however, the ratio begins to reverse until there were only 29 unmarried men for every 100 unmarried women in the 65-and-over group.

CHILDREN UNDER 18 YEARS OLD

As marital circumstances of the adult population change, so do the living arrangements of children. With the rise in divorce and increased delay in first marriage, the proportion of children living with two parents is declining. In 1990, 73 percent of children under 18 years lived with two parents, compared with 85 percent in 1970 (table E and figure 4). These two parents are not always the natural parents of the child; they may include stepparents and parents by adoption. It has been estimated that about 15 percent of children living with two parents are stepchildren.[2]

The proportion of children under 18 living with only one parent has doubled in the past two decades, from 12 percent to 25 percent. While the majority of children in a one-parent situation still live with their mothers (87 percent), the proportion living with their fathers has risen 4 percentage points in the past decade, from 9 percent in 1980 to 13 percent in 1990.

Although the largest proportion of single-parent children lived with a divorced parent (39 percent), this is slightly lower than the 1980 proportion of 42 percent. The next highest, and fastest growing, percentage lived with a parent who had never married. Between 1960 and 1990, the proportion living with a never-married parent rose from 4 percent to 31 percent (table F), as childbearing among never-married women has increased as they have posponed marriage.

Part of this stiking increase in the number of children with a never-married parent is a result of a procedural improvement in the Census Bureau's data collection and processing in 1982-83.[3] This procedural change helped to identify parent-child subfamilies that might otherwise have been overlooked. At least two-thirds of the measured increase between 1981 and 1983 resulted from the improvement in data collection and processing. Nevertheless, the percentage of children living with a never-married parent was increasing before the procedural change and has continued since (table G and figure 5). Between 1970 and 1981, the proportion rose 8.4 percentage points (0.8 percentage points per year) and 6.6 percentage points between 1984 and 1990 (1.1 percentage points per year). The proportion of children living with a divorced parent rose 13.6 percentage points in the 11 years prior to the change and declined

Among the 51.4 million White children under 18 in 1990, 79 percent lived with two parents and 19 percent lived with one parent, who was most often divorced. Thirty-eight percent of the 10 million Black children lived with two parents, while more than half lived with one parent, who, most often, had never married. For Hispanic children (who may be of any race), 67 percent lived with two parents and 30 percent lived with one parent.

Living conditions. The living conditions of children vary by race and by number of parents present.[4] Children living with two parents are more likely than children in a single-parent situation to be living with a parent who has 4 or more years of college, who is employed, who has higher income, and who is a homeowner. Of the 46.5 million children under 18 living with two parents, 27 percent had a parent with 4 or more years of college, 87 percent had an employed parent, 49 percent had family income of $40,000 or more, and 73 percent lived in a home their parents owned. Conversely, of the 15.9 million children under 18 living with one parent, 9 percent had a parent with 4 or more years of college, 58 percent had an employed parent, 11 percent had family income of $40,000 or more, and 35 percent lived in a home their parent owned (table H and figure 6).

[4]Table H and figure 6 present children by characteristics of the reference person. When two parents are present, only one parent is designated as the reference person (usually the father). Therefore, a child in a two-parent situation will be listed as living with an unemployed parent if the reference parent is unemployed, even though the second parent may be employed. Other characteristics will be similarly affected. Tenure, as used here, refers to the tenure of the householder who may or not be the child's parent.

White children, in general, are more likely to be economically and demographically advantaged than Black children, regardless of the number of parents present. For instance, among children living with one parent, 11 percent of Whites and 4 percent of Blacks had a parent with 4 or more years of college; 64 percent of Whites and 48 percent of Blacks had an employed parent; 23 percent of Whites and 12 percent of Blacks had family income of $30,000 or more; and 42 percent of Whites and 24 percent of Blacks lived in a home their parent owned.

GRANDCHILDREN

In 1990, 5 percent of all children under 18 (3.2 million) lived in the home of their grandparents. This excludes children whose parent(s) maintains the household, even if grandparents are living with them. Since 1960, the proportion of children who lived in their grandparents' home has changed only slightly (table I and figure 7).

Grandchildren were more likely in 1990 than in earlier decades to have only one parent present in the household; usually the mother (50 percent in 1990 versus 40 percent in 1980 and 37 percent in 1970). Across the decades, the proportion with both parents present remained constant (15 percent in 1990, 14 percent in 1980, and 16 percent in 1970).

Conversely, the proportion of grandchildren who lived solely with their grandparents dropped 13 percentage points, from 43 percent in 1980 to 30 percent in 1990. This decrease may be largely attributable to the improved data collection procedure discussed in the section "Children Under 18 Years."

White grandchildren are more likely to have both parents present in the grandparent's home than are Black grandchildren (21 percent vs. 3 percent), while Blacks are more likely than Whites to have neither parent present (38 percent vs. 25 percent). About half of Hispanic grandchildren in 1990, had only their mother

YOUNG ADULTS

Significant changes in the living arrangements of young adults have occurred in the past few decades (table J and figure 8). More young adults are living at home with their parents, more are living alone or sharing their home with a roommate or other nonrelative, more are living in the homes of others, and fewer are maintaining families of their own. The most striking of these changes has been the decline of persons maintaining families of their own.

Between 1960 and 1990, the proportion of persons 18 to 24 years old who lived in the home of their parents in 1990 increased from 43 percent to 53 percent. At the same time, the proportion of comparable young adults maintaining a family (married couples or other persons maintaining families) dropped from 42 percent to 22 percent, and the proportion of nonfamily householders (persons living alone or sharing the home they own/rent with a roommate or other nonrelative) increased from 2 to 9 percent. Sixteen percent of persons 18 to 24 years old lived in the home of someone other than their parents.

During that 30-year period, the proportion of adults 25 to 34 who maintained their own families also declined, from 83 percent to 65 percent. This decline was somewhat smaller than the decline for 18- to 24-year-olds and, as a result, the older age group was three times more likely than those in the younger age group to be maintaining a family in 1990, while they were only twice as likely in 1960.

The proportion of young adults aged 25 to 34 living alone or sharing their home with nonrelatives increased from 3 percent in 1960 to 13 percent in 1990. The proportion who lived in the home of their parents was 12 percent in 1990, just slightly higher than the 9 percent in 1960.

In 1990, the large majority of young adults who lived with their parents had never married (97 percent of 18- to 24-year-olds and 80 percent of 25- to 34-year-olds); the proportion who lived with their parents and who had children of their own present was 4 percent and 13 percent, respectively. (See table 7.)

NEVER-MARRIED ADULTS

As of March 1990, 22 percent of all persons 18 and over had never married. As age increases, the proportion never married drops, and the type of living arrangements of never-married adults varies (table K).

Of the 25.3 million persons aged 18 to 24 in 1990, 19.6 million (77 percent) had not yet married; 66 percent of them lived with their parents, 16 percent shared a home with nonrelatives, 12 percent shared a home with relatives other than their parents, and 6 percent lived alone.

Among never-married persons 25 to 29 years old, 21 percent lived alone, 29 percent shared living quarters with nonrelatives, and 34 percent lived with their parents. For the 35-39 age group, the proportion never married who lived alone increased to 36 percent, while the proportions who lived with their parents or shared a home with nonrelatives did not change (23 percent and 22 percent, respectively).

THE ELDERLY

In 1990, there were 29.6 million persons in the noninstitutional population 65 years and older. Living arrangements of the elderly vary by age and sex (table L and figure 9). In the 65-to-74 group, 63 percent are married and living with their spouse, and 24 percent are living alone. As age increases, the proportion living with a spouse declines and the proportion living alone increases. By age 85 and over, 23 percent lived with their spouse and 47 percent lived alone.

Elderly men are more likely than elderly women to be living with their spouses. Three of four men aged 65 to 74 lived with their spouses in 1990, compared with 2 of 4 of women. By age 85 and over, 47 percent of the men were living with their spouses, compared with only 10 percent of the women.

Elderly women are more likely than elderly men to live alone, because women tend to live longer than men. One-third of women 65 to 74 lived alone in 1990, compared with 13 percent of men; by 85 years and over, more than half of the women lived alone, compared with about one-fourth of the men.

Women also were more likely to live with a relative other than a spouse: 14 percent of women 65 to 74 lived with another relative, compared with 7 percent for men; by age 85 and over, the proportions were 28 and 21 percent, respectively.

Table L presents data on the living arrangements of the population 85 years and over (first tabulated from Current Population Survey data in 1989), and comparable decennial census data for 1980. The living arrangements of this age group has changed more since 1980 than for the younger elderly. The proportion of persons 85 years and over living alone rose from 39 percent in 1980 to 47 percent in 1990, persons living with their spouse remained about the same (22 and 23 percent, respectively), and persons living with relatives other than a spouse declined from 36 to 25 percent.

Information on elderly in nursing homes and other institutional living arrangements (persons under care or custody) is not collected in the Current Population Survey, but is available from the decennial census. Based on results from the 1980 census, 5 percent of all persons 65 years and over were living in institutions. Among persons 85 years and over, 23 percent were living in institutions (16 percent of men and 26 percent of women).

LIVING ALONE

More than 1 in every 9 adults 15 and over lived alone in 1990 (23 million). The majority of persons living alone were women (61 percent), although the number is fast increasing for men. Since 1970, the number of women living alone increased by 91 percent, while the number of men rose by 156 percent (table M and figure 10).

Women living alone tend to be older than their male counterparts: more than half of the women living alone in 1990 were 65 years or older, compared with 21 percent of the men. Conversely, women under 45 accounted for only 25 percent of those living alone, compared with 54 percent for men. For both men and women, there has been a considerable increase in the proportion living alone at the younger ages. Between 1970 and 1990, the proportion living alone who were age 25 to 44 years doubled for women (from 9 to 21 percent) and nearly doubled (from 26 to 47 percent) for men. For both, there was a corresponding decrease in the proportion living alone in the 45-to-64 age range. Among persons 65 and over, the proportion declined substantially for men, while there was no significant change for women.

UNMARRIED-COUPLE HOUSEHOLDS

The number of unmarried-couple households has grown 80 percent during the 1980's; from 1.6 million in 1980 to 2.9 million in 1990 (table N and figure 11). An unmarried-couple household, as defined by the Census Bureau, contains only two adults with or without children under 15 years present. The adults must be of opposite sex and not related to one another. Although the unmarried-couple household figure is intended mainly to identify cohabiting couples, and presumably does in most cases, it also may include those with a roomer, boarder, or employee living in the household. The estimate, in turn, misses other cohabiting couples in households where there are more than two adults present.

Table O gives data on the age and marital status of the partners in unmarried-couple households. In more than half of the unmarried-couple households, both partners were in the same age group, and in 55 percent of the total, both partners were under 35 years old. Of the 5.7 million partners that were in unmarried-couple households, the largest proportion were 25 to 34 years of age (41 percent), followed by partners under 25 years (23 percent). By marital status, never-married adults made up the largest share of the partners, 56 percent, followed by divorced persons, 34 percent.

Appendix A. Definitions and Explanations

Coverage. The population in this report includes the civilian noninstitutional population of the United States plus approximately 955,000 members of the Armed Forces in the United States living off post or with their families on post in 1990, but excludes all other members of the Armed Forces. However, the data in table A on median age at first marriage for men refer to the total male population which includes, in addition to the above, the male members of the Armed Forces overseas and in military barracks and similar quarters in the United States.

Symbols. A dash (-) represents zero or rounds to zero. The symbol "B" means that the base for the derived figure is less than 75,000. An "X" means not applicable, and "NA" means not available.

Rounding of estimates. Individual figures are rounded to the nearest thousand without being adjusted to group totals, which are independently rounded; percentages are based on the unrounded numbers.

Metropolitan-nonmetropolitan residence. The population residing in metropolitan statistical areas (MSA's) constitutes the metropolitan population. MSA's are defined by the Office of Management and Budget for use in the presentation of statistics by agencies of the Federal Government. An MSA is a geographic area consisting of a large population nucleus, together with adjacent communities which have a high degree of economic and social integration with that nucleus. The definitions specify a boundary around each large city so as to include most or all its suburbs. Entire counties form the MSA building blocks, except in New England where cities and towns are used. The former term SMSA was changed to MSA in 1983.

An area qualifies for recognition as an MSA if (1) it includes a city of at least 50,000 population, or (2) it includes a Census Bureau-defined urbanized area of at least 50,000 with a total metropolitan population of at least 100,000 (75,000 in New England). In addition to the county containing the main city or urbanized area, an MSA may include other counties having strong commuting ties to the central county. If specified conditions are met, certain large MSA's are designated as consolidated MSA's (CMSA's) and divided into component primary MSA's (PMSA's).

In July 1985, the CPS began carrying the metropolitan statistical area definitions announced by the Office of Management and Budget on June 30, 1984. Figures published from the CPS in the early 1980's and throughout most of the 1970's referred to metropolitan areas as defined on the basis of the 1970 census. Since there are important differences in the population classified as metropolitan using the 1970 and 1984 definitions, comparisons should be avoided.

The new CPS metropolitan estimates have consistently been higher than independent estimates of the metropolitan population prepared by the Census Bureau; the new CPS nonmetropolitan estimates have been lower than the independent estimates. The magnitude of the monthly differences has varied from 900,000 to 2.5 million persons over the past year, so that the proportion of the population living in metropolitan areas according to the CPS has ranged from 0.4 to 1.0 percentage points higher than the independent estimate. The difference in level between the two sets of estimates is partially attributable to the basic CPS sample design, which, because of sampling variability, includes an oversample of metropolitan households and an undersample of nonmetropolitan households. The monthly variations result from the exit and entrance of rotation groups, each with slightly different metropolitan-nonmetropolitan proportions, into the sample. The apparent overestimation of metropolitan and underestimation of nonmetropolitan population in the CPS relative to the Census Bureau's independent estimates should be taken into account when using the data.

Age. The age classification is based on the age of the person at the person's last birthday. The adult universe (i.e., population of marriageable age) now comprises persons 15 years old and over. Prior to 1980 the adult universe was 14 years old and over.

Race. The population is divided into three groups on the basis of race: White, Black, and other races. The last category includes Indians, Japanese, Chinese, and any other race except White and Black.

Persons of Hispanic origin. Persons of Hispanic origin in this report were determined on the basis of a question that asked for self-identification of the person's origin or descent. Respondents were asked to select their origin (or the origin of some other household member) from a "flash card" listing ethnic origins. Persons of Hispanic origin, in particular, were those who indicated that their origin was Mexican, Puerto Rican, Cuban, Central or South American, or some other Hispanic origin. Persons of Hispanic origin may be of any race.

Marital status. The marital status classification identifies four major categories: never married, married, widowed, and divorced. These terms refer to the marital status at the time of the enumeration.

The category "married" is further divided into "married, spouse present," "separated," and "other married, spouse absent." A person was classified as "married, spouse present" if the husband or wife was reported as a member of the household, even though he or she may have been temporarily absent on business or on vacation, visiting, in a hospital, etc., at the time of the enumeration. Persons reported as separated included those with legal separations, those living apart with intentions of obtaining a divorce, and other persons permanently or temporarily separated because of marital discord. The group "other married, spouse absent" includes married persons living apart because either the husband or wife was employed and living at a considerable distance from home, was serving away from home in the Armed Forces, had moved to another area, or had a different place of residence for any other reason except separation as defined above.

Age at first marriage. The median age at first marriage, as shown in this report, is an approximation derived indirectly from tabulations of marital status and age. In computing this median, several steps are involved. First, the expected proportion of young people who will ever marry during their lifetime is computed. Second, one-half of this expected proportion is calculated. And third, the current age of young people who are at this halfway mark is computed. From the assumptions made and the procedures used, it follows that the date of the survey is also the date when this halfway mark is reached. Half of the young people of the given age who will ever get married had done so prior to the survey date and half are expected to marry in years to come.

The quartile ages at first marriage divide people who will ever marry into four equal groups. The first quartile age is the age at which 25 percent of persons have married, the second quartile age (or median age) is the age at which 50 percent of persons have married, and the third quartile age is the age at which 75 percent of persons have married. The quartile ages are computed from the same distributions and involve the same assumptions as to the median ages.

Husband in Armed Forces. When a woman was reported as married but her husband was not enumerated as a member of the same household, an additional question was asked to determine whether her husband was in the Armed Forces. Women who were reported as separated were not asked the additional question.

Household. A household consists of all the persons who occupy a housing unit. A house, an apartment or other group of rooms, or a single room, is regarded as a housing unit when it is occupied or intended for occupancy as separate living quarters; that is, when the occupants do not live and eat with any other persons in the structure and there is direct access from the outside or through a common hall.

A household includes the related family members and all the unrelated persons, if any, such as lodgers, foster children, wards, or employees who share the housing unit. A person living alone in a housing unit, or a group of unrelated persons sharing a housing unit as partners, is also counted as a household. The count of households excludes group quarters.

Group quarters. As of 1983, group quarters were defined in the Current Population Survey as noninstitutional living arrangements for groups not living in conventional housing units or groups living in housing units containing ten or more unrelated persons or nine or more persons unrelated to the person in charge. (Prior to 1983, group quarters included housing units containing five or more persons unrelated to the person in charge.) Examples of persons in group quarters include a person residing in a rooming house, in staff quarters at a hospital, or in a halfway house. Beginning in 1972, inmates of institutions have not been included in the Current Population Survey.

Householder. The householder refers to the person (or one of the persons) in whose name the housing unit is owned or rented (maintained) or, if there is no such person, any adult member, excluding roomers, boarders, or paid employees. If the house is owned or rented jointly by a married couple, the householder may be either the husband or the wife. The person designated as the householder is the "reference person" to whom the relationship of all other household members, if any, is recorded.

Prior to 1980, the husband was always considered the householder in married-couple households. The number of householders is equal to the number of households. Also, the number of family householders is equal to the number of families.

Head versus householder. Beginning with the 1980 CPS, the Bureau of the Census discontinued the use of the terms "head of household" and "head of family." Instead, the terms "householder" and "family householder" are used. Recent social changes have resulted in greater sharing of household responsibilities among the adult members and, therefore, have made the term "head" increasingly inappropriate in the analysis of household and family data. Specifically, the Census Bureau has discontinued its longtime practice of always classifying the husband as the reference person (head) when he and his wife are living together.

In this report, the term "householder" is used in the presentation of data that had previously been presented with the designation "head." The householder is the first adult household member listed on the questionnaire. The instructions call for listing first the person (or one of the persons) in whose name the home is owned or rented. If a home is owned jointly by a married couple, either the husband or the wife may be listed first, thereby becoming the reference person, or householder, to whom the relationship of other household members is to be recorded.

Reference person. The reference person is the person with regard to whom the relationship of other persons in the household is recorded. The household reference person is the person listed as the householder (see definition of "Householder"). The subfamily reference person is either the single parent or the husband/wife in a married-couple situation.

Family. A family is a group of two persons or more (one of whom is the householder) related by birth, marriage, or adoption and residing together; all such persons (including related subfamily members) are considered as members of one family. Beginning with the 1980 CPS, unrelated subfamilies (referred to in the past as secondary families) are no longer included in the count of families, nor are the members of unrelated subfamilies included in the count of family members.

Family household. A family household is a household maintained by a family (as defined above), and any unrelated persons (unrelated subfamily members and/or secondary individuals) who may be residing there are included. The number of family households is equal to the number of families. The count of family household members differs from the count of family members, however, in that the family household members include all persons living in the household, whereas family members include only the householder and his/her relatives. See the definition of family.

Related subfamily. A related subfamily is a married couple with or without children, or one parent with one or more own never-married children under 18 years old, living in a household and related to, but not including, the person or couple who maintains the household. One example of a related subfamily is a young married couple sharing the home of the husband's or wife's parents. The number of related subfamilies is not included in the count of families.

Unrelated subfamily. An unrelated subfamily (formerly called a secondary family) is a married couple with or without children, or a single parent with one or more own never-married children under 18 years old living in a household. Unrelated subfamily members are not related to the householder. An unrelated subfamily may include persons such as guests, partners, roommates, or resident employees and their spouses and/or children. The number of unrelated subfamily members is included in the total number of household members, but is not included in the count of family members.

Beginning in 1989, any person(s) who is not related to the householder and who is not the husband, wife, parent, or child in an unrelated subfamily is counted as an unrelated individual.

Family group. A family group is any two or more persons (not necessarily including a householder) residing together, and related by birth, marriage, or adoption. A household may be composed of one such group, more than one, or none at all. The count of family groups includes family households, related subfamilies, and unrelated subfamilies.

Married couple. A married couple, as defined for census purposes, is a husband and wife enumerated as members of the same household. The married couple may or may not have children living with them. The expression "husband-wife" or "married-couple" before the term "household," "family," or "subfamily" indicates that the household, family, or subfamily is maintained by a husband and wife. The number of married couples equals the count of married-couple families plus related and unrelated married-couple subfamilies.

Unmarried couple. An unmarried couple is composed of two unrelated adults of the opposite sex (one of whom is the householder) who share a housing unit with or without the presence of children under 15 years old.

Unrelated individuals. Unrelated individuals are persons of any age who are not members of families or subfamilies.

Nonfamily householder. A nonfamily householder is a person maintaining a household while living alone or exclusively with persons to whom they are not related.

Secondary individuals. Secondary individuals are persons of any age who reside in a household, but are not related to the householder (except unrelated subfamily members). Persons who reside in group quarters are also secondary individuals. Examples of a secondary individual include (1) a guest, partner, roommate, or resident employee; (2) a foster child; or (3) a person residing in a rooming house, a halfway house, staff quarters at a hospital, or other type of group quarters.

Own children and related children. "Own" children in a family are sons and daughters, including stepchildren and adopted children, of the householder. Similarly, "own" children in a subfamily are sons and daughters of the married couple or parent in the subfamily. (All children shown as members of related subfamilies are own children of the person(s) maintaining the subfamily.) "Related" children in a family include own children and all other children in the household who are related to the householder by birth, marriage, or adoption. For each type of family unit identified in the CPS, the count of own children under 18 years old is limited to never-married children; however, "own children under 25" and "own children of any age," as the terms are used here, include all children regardless of marital status. The totals include never-married children living away from home in college dormitories.

The count of related children in families was formerly restricted to never-married children. However, beginning with data for 1968 the Bureau of the Census includes ever-married children under the category of related children. This change added approximately 20,000 children to the category of related children in March 1968.

Tenure. A housing unit is "owned" if the owner or co-owner lives in the unit, even if it is mortgaged or not fully paid for. A cooperative or condominium unit is "owned" only if the owner or co-owner lives in it. All other occupied units are classified as "rented," including units rented for cash rent and those occupied without payment of cash rent.

Years of school completed. Education of parent, as shown in this report, refers to the years of school completed by the parent (the reference person when both parents are present). Data on years of school completed were derived from the combination of answers to two questions, (a) "What is the highest grade of school that the person has attended?" and (b) "Did the person finish this grade?"

Labor force and employment status. The definitions of labor force and employment status in this report are related to the population 15 years and over. Persons shown here are classified as in the labor force if they were employed as civilians or unemployed during the survey week.

Employed. Employed persons comprise (1) all civilians who, during the specified week, did any work at all as paid employees or in their own business or profession, or on their own farm, or who worked 15 hours or more as unpaid workers on a farm or in a business operated by a member of the family, and (2) all those who were not working but who had jobs or businesses from which they were temporarily absent because of illness, bad weather, vacation, or labor management dispute, or because they were taking time off for personal reasons, whether or not they were paid by their employers for time off, and whether or not they were seeking other jobs. Excluded from the employed group are persons whose only activity consisted of work around the house (own home housework, painting or repairing own home, etc.) or volunteer work for religious, charitable, and similar organizations.

Unemployed. Unemployed persons are those civilians who, during the survey week, had no employment but were available for work and (1) had engaged in any specific job-seeking activity within the past 4 weeks, such as registering at a public or private employment office, meeting with prospective employers, checking with friends or relatives, placing or answering advertisements, writing letters of application, or being on a union or professional register; (2) were waiting to be called back to a job from which they had been laid off; or (3) were waiting to report to a new wage or salary job within 30 days.

Not in the labor force. All civilians who are not classified as employed or unemployed are defined as "not in the labor force." This group who are neither employed nor seeking work includes persons engaged only in own home housework, attending school, or unable to work because of long-term physical or mental illness; persons who are retired or too old to work, seasonal workers for whom the survey week fell in an off season, and the voluntary idle. Persons doing only unpaid family work (less than 15 hours) are also classified as not in the labor force.

Income. Data on income cover money income only, prior to deduction for taxes, received from such sources as wages or salaries, net income from self-employment, Social Security, dividends, interest, public assistance and welfare, unemployment compensation, government pensions, and veterans payments. Certain money receipts such as capital gains are not included.

In table 6, number of children by family income refers to the income of the family (including related subfamily members, if any) or of the unrelated subfamily of which the child is a member. For a more detailed explanation of income, see Bureau of the Census, Current Population Reports, Series P-60.

Poverty. The poverty definition used here is that adopted for official Government use by the Office of Management and Budget and consists of a set of money income thresholds that vary by family size and composition. Families or individuals with income below a particular threshold are classified as below the poverty level. The poverty thresholds are updated every year to reflect changes in the Consumer Price Index. These thresholds are based on money income only and do not include the value of noncash benefits such as employer-provided health insurance, food stamps, or Medicaid. For a more detailed explanation, see Bureau of the Census, Current Population Reports, Series P-60.

Undocumented immigrants. The 1980 census counted about 2 million undocumented immigrants according to Census Bureau estimates. Beginning in January 1986, the independent population controls included an allowance for growth in the undocumented population for every year since 1980. This methodological change was partially offset by another change that increased the allowance for emigration of legal residents. Data shown for Current Population Surveys with controls based on pre-1986 methods have not been revised to take into account these methodological changes. Consequently, direct comparisons of CPS figures for months before January 1986 with later months will not be consistent. Series P-25, No. 985 reviews the postcensal population estimates methodology currently in use.

Appendix B. Source and Accuracy of the Data

SOURCE OF DATA

Most estimates in this report come from data obtained in March of years 1960 through 1990 in the Current Population Survey (CPS). The Bureau of the Census conducts the survey every month, although this report uses only March data for its estimates. Also, some estimates come from 1960 and 1970 decennial census data. The March survey uses two sets of questions, the basic CPS and the supplements.

Basic CPS. The basic CPS collects primarily labor force data about the civilian noninstitutional population. Interviewers ask questions concerning labor force participation about each member 15 years old and over in every sample household.

The present CPS sample was selected from the 1980 Decennial Census files with coverage in all 50 States and the District of Columbia. The sample is continually updated to account for new residential construction. It is located in 729 areas and includes 1,973 counties, independent cities, and minor civil divisions. About 56,100 occupied housing units are eligible for interview every month. Interviewers are unable to obtain interviews at about 2,500 of these units because the occupants are not found at home after repeated calls or are unavailable for some other reason.

Since the introduction of the CPS, the Bureau of the Census has redesigned the CPS sample several times to improve the quality and reliability of the data and to satisfy changing data needs. The most recent changes were completely implemented in July 1985.

The following table summarizes changes in the CPS designs for the years for which data appear in this report.

March Supplement. In addition to the basic CPS questions, interviewers asked supplementary questions in March about marital status and living arrangements.

To obtain more reliable data for the Hispanic origin population, the March CPS sample was increased by about 2,500 eligible housing units, interviewed the previous November, that contained at least one sample person of Hispanic origin. In addition, the sample included persons in the Armed Forces living off post or with their families on post.

[1]Excludes about 2,500 Hispanic households added from the previous November sample. (See "March Supplement.")

[2]The CPS was redesigned following the 1980 Census of Population and Housing. During phase-in of the new design, housing units from the new and old designs were in the sample.

Estimation Procedure. This survey's estimation procedure inflates weighted sample results to independent estimates of the civilian noninstitutional population of the United States by age, sex, race and Hispanic/non-Hispanic categories. The independent estimates were based on statistics from decennial censuses of population; statistics on births, deaths, immigration and emigration; and statistics on the size of the Armed Forces. The independent population estimates used for 1981 to present were based on updates to controls established by the 1980 census. Data previous to 1981 were based on independent population estimates from the most recent decennial census. For more details on the change in independent estimates, see the section entitled "Introduction of 1980 Census Population Controls" in an earlier report (Series P-60, No. 133). The estimation procedure for the March supplement included a further adjustment so husband and wife of a household received the same weight.

The estimates in this report for 1985 and later also employ a revised survey weighting procedure for persons of Hispanic origin. In previous years, weighted sample results were inflated to independent estimates of the noninstitutional population by age, sex, and race. There was no specific control of the survey estimates for the Hispanic population. Since then, the Bureau of the Census developed independent population controls for the Hispanic population by sex and detailed age groups. Revised weighting procedures incorporate these new controls. The independent population estimates include some, but not all, undocumented immigrants.

ACCURACY OF ESTIMATES

Since the CPS estimates come from a sample, they may differ from figures from a complete census using the same questionnaires, instructions, and enumerators. A sample survey estimate has two possible types of error: sampling and nonsampling. The accuracy of an estimate depends on both types of error, but the full extent of the nonsampling error is unknown. Consequently, one should be particularly careful when interpreting results based on a relatively small number of cases or on small differences between estimates. The standard errors for CPS estimates primarily indicate the magnitude of sampling error. They also partially measure the effect of some nonsampling errors in responses and enumeration, but do not measure systematic biases in the data. (Bias is the average, over all possible samples, of the differences between the sample estimates and the desired value.)

Nonsampling Variability. Nonsampling errors can be attributed to many sources. These sources include the inability to obtain information about all cases in the sample, definitional difficulties, differences in the interpretation of questions, respondents' inability or unwillingness to provide correct information or to recall information, errors made in data collection such as in recording or coding the data, errors made in processing the data, errors made in estimating values for missing data, and failure to represent all units with the sample (undercoverage).

CPS undercoverage results from missed housing units and missed persons within sample households. Compared to the level of the 1980 census, overall CPS undercoverage is about 7 percent. CPS undercoverage varies with age, sex, and race. Generally, undercoverage is larger for males than for females and larger for Blacks and other races combined than for Whites. As described previously, ratio estimation to independent age-sex-race-Hispanic population controls partially corrects for the bias due to undercoverage. However, biases exist in the estimates to the extent that missed persons in missed households or missed persons in interviewed households have different characteristics from those of interviewed persons in the same age-sex-race-Hispanic group. Furthermore, the independent population controls have not been adjusted for undercoverage in the 1980 census.

For additional information on nonsampling error including the possible impact on CPS data when known, refer to Statistical Policy Working Paper 3, An Error Profile: Employment as Measured by the Current Population Survey, Office of Federal Statistical Policy and Standards, U.S. Department of Commerce, 1978 and Technical Paper 40, The Current Population Survey: Design and Methodology, Bureau of the Census, U.S. Department of Commerce.

Comparability of Data. Data obtained from the CPS and other sources are not entirely comparable. This results from differences in interviewer training and experience and in differing survey processes. This is an example of nonsampling variability not reflected in the standard errors. Use caution when comparing results from different sources.

Caution should also be used when comparing estimates in this report, which reflect 1980 census-based population controls, with estimates for 1980 and earlier years, which reflect 1970 census-based population controls. This change in population controls had relatively little impact on summary measures such as means, medians, and percent distributions, but did have a significant impact on levels. For example, use of 1980-based population controls results in about a 2-percent increase in the civilian noninstitutional population and in the number of families and households. Thus, estimates of levels for data collected in 1981 and later years will differ from those for earlier years by more than what could be attributed to actual changes in the population. These differences could be disproportionately greater for certain subpopulation groups than for the total population.

Since no independent population control totals for persons of Hispanic origin were used before 1985, compare Hispanic estimates over time cautiously.

Note When Using Small Estimates. Summary measures (such as medians and percentage distributions) are shown only when the base is 75,000 or greater. Because of the large standard errors involved, summary measures would probably not reveal useful information when computed on a smaller base. However, estimated numbers are shown even though the relative standard errors of these numbers are larger than those for corresponding percentages. These smaller estimates permit combinations of the categories to suit data users' needs. Take care in the interpretation of small differences. For instance, even a small amount of nonsampling error can cause a borderline difference to appear significant or not, thus distorting a seemingly valid hypothesis test.

Sampling Variability. Sampling variability is variation that occurred by chance because a sample was surveyed rather than the entire population. Standard errors, as calculated by methods described later in "Standard Errors and Their Use," are primarily measures of sampling variability, although they may include some nonsampling error.

Standard Errors and Their Use. A number of approximations are required to derive, at a moderate cost, standard errors applicable to all the estimates in this report. Instead of providing an individual standard error for each estimate, generalized sets of standard errors are provided for various types of characteristics. Thus, the tables show levels of magnitude of standard errors rather than the precise standard errors.

The sample estimate and its standard error enable one to construct a confidence interval, a range that would include the average result of all possible samples with a known probability. For example, if all possible samples were surveyed under essentially the same general conditions and using the same sample design, and if an estimate and its standard error were calculated from each sample, then approximately 90 percent of the intervals from 1.6 standard errors below the estimate to 1.6 standard errors above the estimate would include the average result of all possible samples.

A particular confidence interval may or may not contain the average estimate derived from all possible samples. However, one can say with specified confidence that the interval includes the average estimate calculated from all possible samples.

Some statements in the report may contain estimates followed by a number in parentheses. This number can be added to and subtracted from the estimate to calculate upper and lower bounds of the 90-percent confidence interval. For example, if a statement contains the phrase "grew by 1.7 percent (±1.0)," the 90-percent confidence interval for the estimate, 1.7 percent, is 0.7 percent to 2.7 percent.

Standard errors may also be used to perform hypothesis testing, a procedure for distinguishing between population parameters using sample estimates. The most common type of hypothesis appearing in this report is that the population parameters are different. An example of this would be comparing the number of Black children living with grandparents to the number of White children living with grandparents.

Tests may be performed at various levels of significance, where a significance level is the probability of concluding that the characteristics are different when, in fact, they are the same. All statements of comparison in the text have passed a hypothesis test at the 0.10 level of significance or better. This means that the absolute value of the estimated difference between characteristics is greater than or equal to 1.6 times the standard error of the difference.

Standard Errors of Estimated Numbers. There are two ways to compute the approximate standard error, s_x, of an estimated number shown in this report. The first uses the formula where f is a factor from table B-6, and s is the standard error of the estimate obtained by interpolation from tables B-1 through B-3. The second method uses formula (2), from which the standard errors in tables B-1 through B-3 were calculated. This formula will provide more accurate results than formula (1).

$$s_x = \sqrt{ax^2 + bx} \qquad (2)$$

Here x is the size of the estimate and a and b are the parameters in table B-6 associated with the particular type of characteristic. When calculating standard errors for numbers from cross-tabulations involving different characteristics, use the factor or set of parameters for the characteristic which will give the largest standard error.

Illustration. Table E shows there were 46,503,000 children under 18 years old living with two parents in 1990. Using formula (1), the appropriate factor from table B-6 and a standard error obtained by interpolation from table B-1, the approximate standard error is 1.0x386,000 = 386,000.

Using the second method with a = -0.000020 and b = 4,185 from table B-6, the estimate of the standard error is

$$s_x = \sqrt{-0.000020 \times 46{,}503{,}000^2 + 4{,}185 \times 46{,}503{,}000} = 389{,}000$$

The 90-percent confidence interval for the number of children under 18 years old living with two parents in 1990 is from 45,880,600 to 47,125,400 (using 1.6 times the standard error). Therefore, a conclusion that the average estimate derived from all possible samples lies within a range computed in this way would be correct for roughly 90 percent of all possible samples.

Standard Errors of Estimated Percentages. The reliability of an estimated percentage, computed using sample data for both numerator and denominator, depends on the size of the percentage and its base. Estimated percentages are relatively more reliable than the corresponding estimates of the numerators of the percentages, particularly if the percentages are 50 percent or more. When the numerator and denominator of the percentage are in different categories, use the factor or parameter from table B-6 indicated by the numerator.

The approximate standard error, $s_{x,p}$, of an estimated percentage can be obtained by use of the formula

$$s_{x,p} = fs \qquad (3)$$

In this formula, f is the appropriate factor from table B-6, and s is the standard error of the estimate obtained by interpolation from table B-4 or B-5.

Alternatively, formula (4) will provide more accurate results:

$$s_{x,p} = \sqrt{bp\,(100 - p)\,/\,x} \qquad (4)$$

Here x is the total number of persons, families, households, or unrelated individuals in the base of the percentage, p is the percentage ($0 \leq p \leq 100$), and b is the parameter in table B-6 associated with the characteristic in the numerator of the percentage.

Illustration. Table 0 shows that of the 2,856,000 unmarried-couple households, 1,189,000 or 41.6 percent, are 25 to 34 years old. Using formula (3), the appropriate factor from table B-6 (0.6), and a standard error from table B-4, the approximate standard error is 0.6x1.9 = 1.1. Using the alternate method with b = 1,661, the approximate standard error of 41.6 percent is

$$s_{x,p} = \sqrt{1{,}661 \times 41.6 \times (100 - 41.6)/2{,}856{,}000} = 1.2$$

This means that the 90-percent confidence interval for the percentage of unmarried-couple households who are 25 to 34 years old is from 39.7 to 43.5 percent, i.e., 41.6 ± (1.6x1.2).

Standard Error of a Difference. The standard error of the difference between two sample estimates is approximately equal to where s_x and s_y are the standard errors of the estimates, x and y. The estimates can be numbers, percentages, ratios, etc. This will represent the actual standard error quite accurately for the difference between estimates of the same characteristic in two different areas, or for the difference between separate and uncorrelated characteristics in the same area. However, if there is a high positive (negative) correlation between the two characteristics, the formula will overestimate (underestimate) the true standard error.

Illustration. Table I shows there were 3,155,000 children living with grandparents in 1990 and in 1980 there were 2,306,000. The apparent difference is 849,000. Using formula (2) and the appropriate parameters from table B-6, the approximate standard errors of these two estimates are 114,000 and 101,000, respectively. Therefore, from formula (5), the approximate standard error of the estimated difference of 849,000 households is

$$s_{x-y} = \sqrt{114{,}000^2 + 101{,}000^2} = 152{,}000$$

This means that the 90-percent interval for the difference between number of children living with grandparents in 1990 and in 1980 is from 605,800 to 1,092,200. A conclusion that the average estimate of the difference derived from all possible samples lies within a range computed in this way would be correct for roughly 90 percent of all possible samples. Since this interval does not contain zero, we can conclude with 90 percent confidence that the number of children living with grandparents is greater in 1990 than in 1980.

Standard Error of a Mean for Grouped Data. The formula used to estimate the standard error of a mean for grouped data is

$$s_{\bar{x}} = \sqrt{(b/y)\,S^2} \qquad (6)$$

In this formula, y is the size of the base of the distribution and b is a parameter from table B-6. The variance,

S^2, is given by the following formula:

$$S^2 = \sum_{i=1}^{c} p_i \bar{x}_i^2 - \bar{x}^2 \qquad (7)$$ where $\bar{x}$, the mean of the distribution, is estimated by

$$\bar{x} = \sum_{i=1}^{c} p_i \bar{x}_i \qquad (8)$$

c is the number of groups; i indicates a specific group, thus taking on values 1 through c.

p_i is the estimated proportion of households, families or persons whose values, for the characteristic (x-values) being considered, fall in group i.

$\bar{x}_i$ is $(Z_{i-1} + Z_i)/2$ where Z_{i-1} and Z_i are the lower and upper interval boundaries, respectively, for group i. $\bar{x}_i$ is assumed to be the most representative value for the characteristic for households, families, and unrelated individuals or persons in group i. Group c is open-ended, i.e., no upper interval boundary exists. For this group the approximate average value is

$$\bar{x}_c = \frac{3}{2} Z_{c-1} \qquad (9)$$

Standard Error of a Ratio. Certain estimates may be calculated as the ratio of two numbers. The standard error of a ratio, x/y, may be computed using

The standard error of the numerator, s_x, and that of the denominator, s_y, may be calculated using formula (2). Alternatively, use formula (1) and table B-6. In formula (10), r represents the correlation between the numerator and the denominator of the estimate.

For one type of ratio, the denominator is a count of families or households and the numerator is a count of persons in those families or households with a certain characteristic. If there is at least one person with the characteristic in every family or household, use 0.7 as an estimate of r. An example of this type is the mean number of children per family with children.

For all other types of ratios, r is assumed to be zero. If r is actually positive (negative), then this procedure will provide an overestimate (underestimate) of the standard error of the ratio. Examples of this type are the mean number of children per family and the poverty rate.

NOTE: For estimates expressed as the ratio of x per 100 y or x per 1,000 y, multiply formula (10) by 100 or 1,000, respectively, to obtain the standard error.

Illustration. Table M shows the number of men, 65 to 74 years old, living alone, x, was 1,042,000 and the number of women, 65 to 74 years old, living alone, y, was 3,309,000. This means that the ratio of men to women, 65 to 74 years old, living alone was 31 per 100. The standard error of this estimate is calculated by using the following steps:

1. Compute s_x and s_y using formula (2).

$$s_x = \sqrt{-0.000020 \times 1{,}042{,}000^2 + 4{,}185 \times 1{,}042{,}000} = 66{,}000$$

$$s_y = \sqrt{-0.000020 \times 3{,}309{,}000^2 + 4{,}185 \times 3{,}309{,}000} = 117{,}000$$

2. Compute $(s_x/x)^2 = 0.004012$.
3. Compute $(s_y/y)^2 = 0.001250$.
4. Using formula (10) and r = 0, the estimate of the standard error is

$$s_{x/y} = 100\,\frac{1{,}042{,}000}{3{,}309{,}000}\sqrt{0.004012 + 0.001250} = 2.3$$

This means that the 90-percent confidence interval for the ratio of men to women, 65 to 74 years old, living alone, is from 27.3 to 34.7 per 100.

Standard Error of a Median. The sampling variability of an estimated median depends on the form of the distribution and the size of the base. One can approximate the reliability of an estimated median by determining a confidence interval about it. (See the section on standard errors and their use for a general discussion of confidence intervals.)

Estimate the 68-percent confidence limits of a median based on sample data using the following procedure.

1. Determine, using formula (4), the standard error of the estimate of 50 percent from the distribution.
2. Add to and subtract from 50 percent the standard error determined in step 1.
3. Using the distribution of the characteristic, determine upper and lower limits of the 68-percent confidence interval by calculating values corresponding to the two points established in step 2.

   Use the following formula to calculate the upper and lower limits.

$$X_{pN} = \frac{pN - N_1}{N_2 - N_1}\,(A_2 - A_1) + A_1 \qquad (11)$$

where

X_{pN} = estimated upper and lower bounds for the confidence interval ($0 \le p \le 1$). For purposes of calculating the confidence interval, p takes on the values determined in step 2. Note that X_{pN} estimates the median when p = 0.50.

N = for distribution of numbers: the total number of units (persons, households, etc.) for the characteristic in the distribution.

= for distribution of percentages: the value 1.0.

p = the values obtained in step 2.

A_1, A_2 = the lower and upper bounds, respectively, of the interval containing X_{pN}.

N_1, N_2 = for distribution of numbers: the estimated number of units (persons, households, etc.) with values of the characteristic greater than or equal to A_1 and A_2, respectively.

= for distribution of percentages: the estimated percentage of units (persons, households, etc.) having values of the characteristic greater than or equal to A_1 and A_2, respectively.

4. Divide the difference between the two points determined in step 3 by two to obtain the standard error of the median.

Illustration. Table M shows the median age for men living alone in 1990 as 42.5 years and the base of the distribution from which this median was determined is 9,049,000 men living alone.

1. Using formula (4), and the appropriate b-parameter from Table B-6, the standard error of 50 percent on a base of 9,049,000 is

2. To obtain a 68-percent confidence interval on an estimated median, add to and subtract from 50 percent the standard error found in step (1). This yields percentage limits of 48.9 and 51.1.

3. Table M shows 66.1 percent of men living alone were 35 years of age or older and 45.8 percent were 45 or older. Using formula (11) the upper limit of the estimate may be found to be

$$\frac{48.9 - 66.1}{45.8 - 66.1} (45 - 35) + 35 = 43.5$$

Similarly, since the 51.1 percentage falls within the same age category, the lower limit of the estimate may be found to be

$$\frac{51.1 - 66.1}{45.8 - 66.1} (45 - 35) + 35 = 42.4$$

Thus, the 68-percent confidence interval for the median age of men living alone is from 42.4 to 43.5 years.

4. The standard error of the median is:

$$s_{median} = \frac{43.5 - 42.4}{2} = 0.6 \text{ years}$$
